Dine, Solve "Murder" at Tamarack

■ It's time for the fourth annual Sierra Classic Theatre Murder-Mystery Dinner!

"To be or not to be...." isn't the question. This is the question: have you reserved your tickets for Sierra Classic Theatre's (SCT) murder-mystery dinner at Tamarack Lodge? Featuring the fine acting of Sierra Classic

Theatre and the fine food of Lakefront Restaurant, the murder-mystery dinner is always a sell-out event.

The fourth annual murder-mystery dinner takes place Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 5 and 6, at 7 p.m. at Tamarack. Doors — and the bar — open to murder-mystery guests at 6 p.m. Tickets are $40 in advance and $45 at the door. The price includes the SCT performance, dinner, and wine. Guess who the "murder" culprit is and win a fabulous prize.

The murder-mystery dinner is a fund-raiser for SCT, Mammoth's only non-profit group dedicated to bringing the classics, from Shakespeare to Tennessee Williams and beyond, to the Eastern Sierra stage, wherever that stage might be.

Contact murder-mystery director Stacy Corless for tickets and for more information: (760) 920-0190. Tickets may also be purchased at the front desk of Tamarack Lodge and Resort: (760) 934-2442. — Stacy Corless

And from Geisel's desk ...

Went to check out Sierra Classic Theater's Murder Mystery Dinner "Trout of Terror" at Tamarack Lodge. (Full disclosure: I cowrote it with SCT's Stacy Corless, who also directed, so if I gush a little, that's why.) First off, one highlight was the return to active duty of Lakefront Chef Fred Pierrel, who's up and around and serving up culinary excellence. Fred's mostly recovered from his recent motorcycle accident, and back to work, ready for a busy winter dining season. It was also quite a thrill to see a great cast of players bring "Trout" to life. Thanks to the talented Ms. Corless for having me along again. Looking forward to another collaboration, and another murder mystery next year. SCT turns 10 in 2009 - happy birthday early!

Fall special: Frog Ribs

Saw Fred Pierrel late last week in Northern Inyo Hospital. Fred was pretty badly banged up in a motorcycle accident a week or so ago, but by the time you read this, he should be home recuperating. When I dropped in on him, he was in good spirits and looked great, considering a few days earlier he had a collapsed lung, and was still smarting from 10 broken ribs. We only have 12 ribs, folks; keep that in mind. Fred said he doesn't remember much from the accident, but thinks running over an errant rock somehow ended up sending him and the motorcycle ass over teakettle, as it were.

He may be back to work at Tamarack's Lakefront Restaurant perhaps as soon as four to six weeks, and hopes to be at least up and around a bit in a week or so. No matter how long it takes, we wish Fred (and his wife, Deb) a full, speedy recovery.

We also hope he's back in time for the 10th annual Murder Mystery Dinner from Sierra Classic Theatre, which opens at Tamarack Dec. 1-3 and then closes at Tom's Place on
